A German official message states that the Austro-Germans crossed the middle Tagliamento, and are advancing westward.

They have captured 6000 prisoners and a number of guns.

The Italians admit that the enemy has crossed the Tagliamento north of Pustiano, thus intensifying the pressure on their left wing.

Mr. Ward Price telegraphs that two large German divisions are five miles beyond the Tagliamento.

The crossing of the river, however, does not imply a fresh Austrian victory, as the river is only the first line of the Italian defenses.

The struggle, Mr. Price says, will largely be a race between the enemy's heavy artillery and that of the allied reinforcements.

The Italians are being re-equipped, but the shortage of ammunition and their loss of guns is a grave drawback.

News from Petrograd state that news from the northern front is more favorable.

The army committees are working energetically to restore discipline.

There are indications that the enemy intends to undertake large operations against the northern front.

A Russian official message says: Violent enemy artillery fire prevails west of Sventenka Lake.

The entire Russian army was opposed to complications in Petrograd.

LAW REPORT.

IN BANCO.
(Before Mr. Justice Gorton, Mr. Justice Gordon, and Mr. Justice Harvey.)

AN EXTRADITION MATTER.
Successful Appeal.
Mr. McWilliam, instructed by Mr. R. A. Moore King, appeared for Lacton Jovsevel, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi granted by Mr. Justice Gordon in Chambers, on the 26th of October, for a writ of habeas corpus, directing Denis Gaylor D'Arcy, Governor of the Long Bay Penitentiary, to release applicant from custody. Mr. Alex. Thompson, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillet) appeared for respondent to oppose.

Mr. Justice Gorton said that applicant applied for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he was illegally detained in prison. There was a treaty signed in 1878 between England and France with regard to extradition, and the condition of extradition which the Court had to consider was that the imputed crime must be within the terms of the treaty. It was alleged on behalf of applicant in the present case that the imputed crime was not within the treaty with France, nor was it a crime within the English Extradition Act, 1870 and 1871. If this claim was correct, the proceedings were irregular and without jurisdiction. The offence of which applicant was convicted was a misdemeanor at common law. It was not mentioned in the Treaty. Further than that, the Extradition Act referred to did not include the offence charged, though it included attempts to commit other offences in the same way as in the extradition treaty. That being so, he was of opinion that the offence was not within the Treaty or the Extradition Act, and the proceedings taken against applicant were irregular.

Mr. Justice Gordon concurred, and said that a further difficulty appeared in the case from the fact that the evidence showed that applicant was convicted and sentenced by court martial for "attempt to commit a rape and assault upon a superior officer while in the execution of his duty," and was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment for the two offences jointly. As he was of opinion, however, that neither was an offence for which extradition could be granted, it was not necessary to decide the point.

Mr. Justice Ferguson also concurred. Rule nisi made absolute with costs; applicant's release from custody ordered.

STRIKE PROSECUTIONS.

The trial of Edward John Kavanagh, Claude Thompson, Alfred Charles Willis, and Arthur William Buckley for alleged conspiracy in connection with the recent strike in Sydney was continued in the Criminal Court before his Honor Mr. Justice Pring, at Darlinghurst, yesterday. Mr. Blackett, K.C., and Mr. Bromfield (instructed by Mr. Baughan, of the Crown Law Office), appeared to prosecute. Mr. Windyler, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Coghlan and Co.), appeared for William Gannon, K.C., and Mr. Collins (instructed by Mr. McMahon) appeared for Buckley; Mr. Watt and Mr. McElie (instructed by Messrs. Coghlan and Co.), for Kavanagh; and Mr. Sheridan (instructed by Messrs. Coghlan and Co.), for Thompson.

Thomas Cooper, foreman after at Handwick workshops, said, at the beginning of August, he had 157 men under him. After 9 o'clock on August 2 he had only seven men, the other 150 having left in a body.

By Mr. Sheridan: The card system had not been introduced into the fitting shop, but it was intended to introduce it. It was intended to introduce it by little doses at a time, one shop after the other.

In reply to Mr. Windyler, the witness said a number of sub-foremen were appointed at the beginning of the year. They were appointed in connection with the introduction of the card system. The card system had been introduced 12 months previously, and it was withdrawn. The men were hostile to it; he knew it was the general feeling of the men in the works. About two months previous to August 2 he knew it was intended to reintroduce the card system. It was generally felt among the men that it was intended to speed-up the men by the card system. The men believed the pace would be faster.

Constable Hagan said he heard Buckley address a crowd in the Domain on August 24. He said, "The Government could not hold out for another week, the men could stand solid for a month or two. I know of a development which will have the effect of bringing about a compromise. The men are going back to work, and the Government will have to give in. The men are no longer represents the people. Mr. Fraser has told you how many men have returned to work, but he has not told you that four men have been killed at Rivett's workshops and one at Handwick."

A man in the crowd interjected, "It is a pity they were not all killed." Buckley said, "I did not say that, but I can think what I like." Buckley further said, "There are numbers of cars lying in the sheds which are now no better than scrap iron and wood." Buckley said he was in a hurry, and had to address other meetings. He saw a procession on between 400 and 500 enter the Domain at 3.30 that afternoon.

By Mr. Gannon: He had heard Buckley tell the people to be orderly and sober, and keep their heads, but not on the occasion of August 2. Buckley only spoke for five minutes. Collections were made there for the distressed women.

Constable McMurray said he heard Buckley speak in the Domain on August 22. He took a shorthand note of the speech, portion of which he gave in evidence. He had shown in the Police Court that he had taken a note of everything Buckley had said. He only took down what he had stated to the Court.

By Mr. Windyler: He was submitted to a test of speed in shorthand the other day by Judge Backhouse and failed. It was an unfair test, an unusual rate of speed. He was a victim of the defence in the time. He could do outside what he could not do in Court.

Senior Detective Hawn said on August 22 he heard Buckley say to the Domain: "The Government are a lot of parasites and an organ of destruction. This is the War of Government, not the war in France, but the war against the workers. You keep solid, and you will find the Government has made a mistake. The unions won't go back till the card system is abolished and there is no victimisation." On August 24 he heard Buckley say to an audience of 500 in the Domain: "I have much pleasure in telling you that a large number of free labourers have gone back to the country disgusted. You remain solid and you will be victorious. I have it from good authority that Labor Government will settle the industrial dispute, as they had industrial trouble throughout the whole of the country in England."

By Mr. Watt: He had always known Kavanagh to be a man of good character and of an obliging nature.

By Mr. Gannon: Kavanagh advised the men to keep away from the "pops" and to be orderly. Kavanagh asked for subscriptions for the men and families of the strikers.

After further evidence the case was adjourned till the following day.

It is not vanity to desire to look your best, but your duty, and the task is made easy with Ven-Yusa, the Oxygen Face Cream at your command.

Ven-Yusa invigorates and revitalises the tissues, dispelling those lines of care round the mouth, and those wrinkles about the forehead and neck. It is most refreshing after a day's shopping, and after those tiresome "calls." It is like an oxygen bath for the skin when you are jaded after the close air of shop, workroom, or theatre.

Ven-Yusa is most natural and refined, as distinguished from those artificial and coarse creams which have had to suffice hitherto. Ven-Yusa is an absolutely greasiest and most delicate preparation. Do your duty to your complexion by having a dainty jar of Ven-Yusa on your dressing-table—and by using it always.

Miss Lily Walton, the charming young Sydney brunette whose photo is shown above, says:—"Ven-Yusa is the ideal Face Cream. I shall always use it and recommend it to my friends."
